The Bake Sale for World Hunger last week raised $2,120.00!! You are awesome!

Being safe! Glasses for the Eclipse:

Put the glasses on indoors and take a look around. You shouldn't be able to see anything except for very bright sources of light, and even those should be very faint. If you can see any regular objects, the glasses are fake.

Put the glasses on outside on a sunny day. You still should not be able to see anything around you, with the possible exception of the sun from the reflective surface (a puddle, a metal wall, etc.). If you can see anything else, the glasses are fake.

With the glasses on, look up at the sun for a fraction of a second. In that brief glance, you should be able to see the sun, but it should only appear as a round disk with a mild brightness, possibly with a colored tint, depending on the filters in the glasses.
