

LUTHER MEMORIAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

ADULT BIBLE STUDY

We've met on front porches, backyards, under trees, and even in a dahlia garden. And yes, Zoom is still regarded as a meaningful way to offer adult learning to a wider audience. Usually, the presenter proposes a topic and curious individuals sign in to the event after receiving sign in instructions.

Zooming opportunities aside, members still seem to relish the idea of face-to-face togetherness in a cozy room on a weekday afternoon. Most recently, a group met throughout the fall in study and reflection on the Gospel of St. John. Our guided discussion was led by Tina Syrell.

Through guidance from the presenter/group leader such as Tina, prospective attendees generally choose a study topic and agree on a day/time to meet until the topic is finished, and then they take a break. Through study and discussion, participants experience new biblical understandings that touch their minds and hearts in order to enter into a deeper relationship with God.
